ABOUT LIFE AND TIMES IN BIG CAPE NOME.

Growing Faster Than Dawson and Klondike Prices For All Things Still Prevail.

"Cape Nome," says Captain Lewis B.
Butler, formerly connected with the Geological Survey, for years an expert of the California State Mining Bureau, and a widely-known authority on the Pacific Coast on placer mining, "has grown as fast as Dawson, and, because it is so much easier of access from the outside world from the middle of April to October, it will grow faster and be a finer town. When I reached Nome last August the town had between 3500 and 4000 men and about 2000 women.
Before I left there were more than 5000 men in Nome. The town is at the mouth of Snake river, in the elbow of a wide turn in the coast line. Shipping cannot reach the shore, and everybody and everything that arrives at the town on a ship must be carried to shore on lighters.

"The town has grown up right on the beach, and last summer it was an extraordinary sight to see several thousand men strung out in broken lines along the beach as far as the eye could reach all working day after day as hard as they could at shoveling sand into the rockers and getting out the golden particles. Day and night the work went on, for in summer the nights in the Arctic are almost as light as in the daytime.

"Nome is an organized city, with a Mayor and City Council. The City Marshal, I believe, got $400 a month salary when I was there, and he was threatening to quit the job unless he got $500. The city is very quiet and unusually honest for a new gold camp.
Compared with Cripple Creek and Virginia City in the early days, Nome is a Puritanical, Sabbath-observing town.
Everyone is too busy there to scheme deceitfully, and too tired from gold washing to raise much ome when night comes.

"All these Arctic mining camps are different from any we ever knew in the States. The climate is too severe, the necessity for providing for frightfully cold weather is too apparent to permit of ease-taking and debauchery like that we have known in all Western gold and silver camps. A small company of United States soldiers, in charge of Captain Craig, are stationed near Nome, and they have kept in check any turbulent spirits among Nome's population.

"The winding, lane-like streets of Nome are flanked by rude and hastily-constructed buildings of rough pine boards, canvas houses, dirty, weather-beaten tents and cabins built in the most primitive way, with rusty, battered stovepipes sticking at all angles through side walls and roofs. A score of cheap saloons, seven gambling houses, three dance halls and a very crude apology for a hotel are the principal structures in Nome. But you must remember that there was not even a tent there last February. In a year more Nome will have, without doubt, a population of 15,000.

"Prices for everything run high in Nome. Coal was eagerly bought there last October for $70 a ton, and it sold for $55 there even when navigation was open. Rubber boots, absolutely necessary up there, sell for $18 a pair; common shovels for $10; kerosene oil for $2 a gallon, and dannel shirts that can be bought for $1.20 anywhere in the States bring $7 in Nome. The prices for provisions vary with the seasons everywhere in Alaska. Last summer when navigation was open I paid $2.50 for five pounds of sugar, and now that Nome is cut off from the outside world the price is $5 for five pounds. Fresh beef and pork sell for $1 and $1.50 a pound; codfish for 70 cents a pound; flour is 35 cents a pound in summer, and 50 cents a pound in winter, candies sell for 60 cents each; oatmeal that may be pretty musty, sells for 50 cents a pound; and 12-pound hams, that may be several years old, sell like hot cakes at Nome for $10 and $12 each. Packed eggs are a scarce article at Nome, and I have seen them sell for 25 cents each.

"Lumber is scarce, for there is no timber within hundreds of miles. It has sold for $250 a thousand feet, and could not be had often at that price. Regular meals, consisting of three or four substantial articles of food and a pile made of dried apples could be had at from $3 to $5, and by ordering fancy dishes it was very easy to make a meal cost $20. A bed in a tent without blankets costs $1 a night, or $2 if blankets are furnished. Beer is sold at 50 cents a glass."

Appalling Death Rate in India.

LONDON, June 25.—The Governor of Bombay wires that there were 10,877 deaths from cholera out of 15,479 cases during the week ending June 16.
The Viceroy of India, Lord Curzon, cables that frequent showers have fallen in the Deccan and elsewhere, but that copious rains are wanted in order to enable the natives to engage in plowing and sowing the autumn crops.
The famine situation is unaltered.

Executor Resigned.

G. C. Hewitt has resigned as executor of the will of the late Jacob Jergensen. The Hawaiian Trust and Investment Co., limited, has been appointed executor in his place. Jergensen left an estate of $10,074.20.

Good Medicine for Children

If you have a baby in the house you will wish to know the best way to check any unusual looseness of the bowels, or diarrhoea so common to small children. O. P. M. Holliday, of Deming, Ind., who has an 11-months-old child, says: "Through the months of June and July our baby was teething and took a running off of the bowels and sickness of the stomach. His bowels would move from five to eight times a day. I had a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy in the house and gave him four drops in a teaspoonful of water, and he got better at once." For sale by all dealers and druggists, Benson, Smith & Co., general agents, Hawaiian Territory.

The Honolulu Republican will be delivered to any part of the city for 75c per month or $2 per quarter.

THE MAN WHO DRESSES WELL

Has that satisfactory feeling which invariably comes to a man after partaking heartily of an excellent dinner. It causes him to wonder what there is in the world to be miserable about.

THE "KASH"

Is a rendezvous for well dressed men. Very Modish are the Suits and Furnishing Goods shown by us this season. Our windows tell about them.
Have a look during luncheon hour.

"It's a very good world to live in,

To lend, or to spend, or to give in.

But to beg, or to borrow, or to get a man's own,

It is the very worst world that ever was known."

AND WORST OF ALL, the dear old world is busy trying to forget how to give a lot for a little. It's a tad of ours TO BE FRANK. And, besides, if we advertised at all times to give you more than "your money's worth," it would be an insult to your intelligence.

THIS IS WHAT WE DO—We give you one hundred cents' worth of merchandise for one dollar—EVERY TIME. Ask some of your friends—they know. We are offering this week Crash Suits for Men—Coat, Vest and Pants at $2.55 the Suit.
